It may be a surprise to you to learn that in many cases croup can be prevented. Mrs. H. M. Johnson, Elida, Ohio, relates her experience as follows: "My little boy is subject to croup. During the past winter I kept a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy in the home, and when he began having that croupy cough I would give him one or two doses of it and it would break the attack. I like it better for children than any other cough medicine because children take it willingly, and it is safe and reliable." Obtainable everywhere.—Advertisement.

FAMILY AVOIDS SERIOUS SICKNESS
By Being Constantly Supplied With Theodora's Black-Draught.

McDuff, Va.—"I suffered for several years," says Mrs. J. B. Whitaker, of this place, "with sick headache, and stomach trouble."

Ten years ago a friend told me to try Theodora's Black-Draught, which I did, and I found it to be the best family medicine for young and old.

I keep Black-Draught on hand all the time now, and when my children feel a little bad, they ask me for a dose, and it does them more good than any medicine they ever tried.

We never have a long spell of sickness in our family, since we commenced using Black-Draught.

Theodora's Black-Draught is purely vegetable, and has been found to regulate weak stomachs, aid digestion, relieve indigestion, colic, wind, nausea, headache, sick stomach, and similar symptoms.

It has been in constant use for more than 70 years, and has benefited more than a million people.

CITY OF KOPRILE DOMINATES THE VARDAR VALLEY

It Guards the Way to Monastir, and is of Great Strategic Importance.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20.—"Koprili, which has been the vortex of the rapid battles fought in southern Serbia between the Bulgarians and the Serbian, French, and French allies, is described as follows in the latest sketch on war geography issued by the National Geographic Society: "Koprili dominates the Vardar river valley and guards the way to Monastir, the last Serbian city and stronghold. It is situated on the upper-middle part of the Vardar's course, in a whorl of rugged mountains. The Saloniki-Mitrovitsa railway passes through the town, and with a short branch line from Saloniki through Voden to Monastir, forms the only means of rail communication with the outside world remaining in Serbia. Koprili, thus, a town of great strategic importance, for its possession by the Allies keeps the way open for a re-occupation by them of Serbia."

"The valley in which the city lies is a narrow one, and on every side, for miles around, stretch broken mountain lines. The roads through this region are little more than miserable tracks through forest tangles and over rock-strewn hillides. The best way in this country follows the river's course, parallel with the valley, from Uskup, twenty-five miles northwest of Koprili, to Karsanli, across the boundary in Grecian Macedonia."

Servia acquired possession of Koprili after the war of the Balkan League against the Ottoman empire in 1912. Before the transfer of the city's allegiance, it was a hotbed of Serbian, Bulgarian and Grecian nationalist propaganda. The city had a population of about 14,000 at the outbreak of the war, and was developing a brisk trade in silk, mulberries and corn were the chief products of the valley around, and commerce in these articles brought Koprili most of its income."
